Activity Level

This trip does involve almost daily walking over uneven terrain and several hikes up somewhat steep inclines. The most challenging hike is the one up to “Tiger’s Nest” in Paro. It is a steep and for many, an arduous climb. Although one can take a horse a portion of the way, to reach the monastery, one must climb up steep steps.

The road over the mountains in Bhutan is under construction and at times very bumpy.

Altitudes (for comparison, Denver is approximately 5,200 feet)

Paro	7,300 feet	Tiger’s Nest	10,240 feet
Thimpu	7,500 feet
Phobjikha Valley	9,500 feet
